The Iowa Democrats have fine prospects of winning in the state and congressional election this year.

The Current says that the peach market of Carlsbad was glutted last week, fine Elbertas selling at two cents a pound.

If anyone else has a few remarks to make on either side of the statehood question, the columns of the Record are open.

A meeting of farmers who grow cantaloupes was held at Artesia Tuesday to complete an organization and make preparations for shipping in carload lots.

Since the Democratic and Republican organizations of Arizona have united to fight statehood, the Kansas City Times doubts whether there will even be a minority report.

Rev. R. H. Burnett, a noted evangelist of Texas, has purchased the "Pecos Valley Echo" at Dayton. The evangelist may now realize some of the glories of the garden of Eden.

All that any man really knows about psychology is his own experience,—and the people who make things happen are too busy to analyze their own methods of thought.

About the only encouragement the Republicans can get out of Judge Richardson's interview is in his indirect endorsement of the Otero administration,—and that was but conventional courtesy to the dead.

That the war is at last over in Kansas is indicated by the fact that the G. A. R. organization of that state is leading in the fight against the Republican candidate for governor and working in the interest of Col. W. A. Harris, the Democratic nominee who won his title in the Confederate army.

The Territorial Democratic committee of Arizona in a meeting held at Phoenix last Saturday unanimously condemned the policy of the national administration, the Republican congress and the national Republican party concerning the union of Arizona and New Mexico.

In all probability the people of New Mexico will soon know how many thousands of dollars of the permanent funds of the various territorial institutions have been "used" during the past few years. The permanent funds were supposed to be what the name implied, but they didn't last very long and came very far from being permanent.—Santa Fe Eagle.

El Paso Herald: "Carlsbad, N. M. twits El Paso at her lack of decent sidewalks. She has a right to twit us, to our shame. Carlsbad and Roswell are both active in sidewalk building, and there are many other towns in Arizona and New Mexico that in proportion to their population and street mileage have El Paso bested many times in sidewalks.

The New Mexico Territorial Democratic committee meets at Santa Fe tomorrow to decide upon the time and place of holding the convention to nominate a candidate for delegate to congress. It is possible that the statehood question may receive some attention in the committee meeting. Hon. J. F. Hinkle and G. A. Richardson are the Chaves county members of the Territorial committee.

"Lucius Dills, secretary of the Roswell Fair Association, came down Thursday afternoon to interest Artesia horsemen in the racing program of the coming fair in September. Some splendid purses are being hung up this year, and there are already stabled a number of track horses. The Roswell Fair should have the support of the entire Pecos Valley, and all who can should make arrangements to attend.—Artesia Advocate.

This is the time of year the fakers infest teachers' institutes. Their game is to stand in with a few leaders and then rob the rest of the teachers. They have educational series, cyclopaedias, histories, literary digests, and the like, and, male and female, they are shrewd, polished grafters. Every book agent who hangs about a teachers' institute is a faker. There's not an exception. He, or she, is on hand to rob somebody, to get something for nothing.—Western Spirit (Paola, Kan.)

Territorial fair there is no other that involves as much of interest to the whole people of the Territory as the wool convention. The several exhibits of live stock, agricultural products, minerals, etc., each has a peculiar interest for a special class, while all other classes are interested in it only in a nominal way; but when we come to a consideration of those matters which pertain to the sheep and wool business, we are all interested—every person in New Mexico, from Raton to Lordsburg, and from Carlsbad to Farmington, is largely and directly interested in whatever concerns the prosperity of our sheep and wool business, because this lies at the foundation of all our other industries. Cattle, horses, mining, fruit growing, farming, manufacturing are all important industries, which deserve and always receive the careful attention of the fair management, and bear with special force upon the welfare of special classes, but the prosperity or adversity of the wool business is at once known and felt in the pockets of all of us. The sheep is our industrial cornerstone, and whatever disturbs that, disturbs our whole industrial edifice. For this reason it is sincerely hoped that the people of the Territory at large will interest themselves in the coming convention, and not leave the matter entirely to the sheep owners. Professional men, business men, politicians, all are concerned with the outcome of this convention and the result of its deliberations, and all should give it their attention. It must not be supposed that the attention of the convention is to be monopolized by the consideration of such subjects as grazing, shearing or lambing. These are all very important trade matters, but they are matters to be discussed and decided by the sheep men among themselves. The objects for which this convention was called, however, are much broader and more far-reaching than any of these, and so far as the general public is concerned, are much more important, because they are matters that will have a direct influence for good or ill upon the entire sheep-growing industry through out the Territory, and thus indirectly, though none the less certainly, effect the interest of all of us. For instance, it is well known that a proper effort on our part will secure the passage by congress at its coming session, of a law permitting the opening of various government reservations to grazing purposes, and since some millions of acres of our best grazing lands are now tied up in reservations, it will be seen at a glance that this is a matter of more than ordinary importance. It is known, also, that congress will make practically such a law upon the subject as the people of the Territory may ask for, and hence it is particularly important that we should get such an act as will result in the greatest good to the greatest number, and at the same time bring something to the Territorial treasury. Here, then, is a case in which it will be vitally important for the convention to have the counsel and co-operation of clear-headed men, regardless of their particular line of business—and this is but a sample of several important matters that will come up for consideration. Hence, it is hoped, as a matter directly bearing upon the public welfare, that there will be a full attendance at the convention. Governor Hagerman, recognizing the importance of the convention in the influence it may have upon the most important interests of New Mexico, has selected and appointed delegations of good men from all the counties of the Territory, and all of these should regard it as a matter of public duty as well as of self-interest, to be present.
